As per my dream/hope of having high level of education, I think I will be blessed when I will offer my effort to the sick people and hence reduce the mortality of young children and those who are dying of HIV/AIDS, malaria, and other communicable diseases. By having good education I will be able to teach and counsel many people against HIV/AIDS.

During my travel I will compare our economics and other social services offered to the citizen of country in questions. I wish our government would be concerned to the people of this country so as to improve life standard of all people in this country.

The topic which I want to introduce to you is about building the future. Building the future is the long hard scramble (fighting and struggling to get something which is most profitable) carried out by individual person or group of people so as to create better life.

Building the future is not an easy task, it means that an individual person or group of people should use a lot of mental and physical efforts so as to get what they need...

In many societies people building the future through education, education can be formal or informal.. Another way of building the future is by land utilization. This is common in many communities in Africa where by the people participate in difference agricultural activities by producing various type of crops and keeping animals. The peasant produce product from the farm and use some of the products for consumption and the surplus are used as the product to be sold in the market.

Removal of social injustices. Most society fail to be developed due to the presence of social injustice like the leader misuse their power by private use of public property or receiving corruption. Due to that people cannot able to get their right.

In order to sum up the points explained above which elaborate how one or group of people can build the future apart from those commitment and readiness can make one to complete his/her dreams.
